Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the Best Tonic for Nervous Tired-Out Wives.

Is your wife "all tired out" and cross and irritable much of the time? Do the children "bother her to death" every day, and do the ordinary household tasks that she formerly performed with ease seem now to overtax her? In other words, do you often come home to a house of trouble instead of a house of joy and happiness? If your answer is "yes" to these pointed questions, don't blame your wife until she has taken Gude's Pepto-Mangan with her meals for a few weeks. She is simply run-down and nervous and needs the kind of iron that she will get in Gude's Pepto-Mangan to give her more vitality and strength. For 30 years doctors have recommended Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a first-class building-up tonic. Sold by your druggist in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement

OPECHANOCOUGH FOUGHT AT AGE OF 100 YEARS

ON a March day 300 years ago, the colony of Virginia witnessed the greatest Indian massacre the American continent has ever known. Within an hour 347 men, women and children had been slaughtered and 80 plantations along the James River had been reduced to six. Back of this carnage of blood was the crafty brain of one man—Opechanocough, chief of the Pamunkeys.

Openocough's hatred for the whites dated from the time that the doughty Capt. John Smith had seized him by the hair and marched him away at the point of a pistol because the chief had refused to sell to the starved colonists food. He was soon ransomed by his tribesmen but he never forgot the humiliation. His brother Powhatan held the Pamunkeys in restraint, but when Powhatan died Openocough began plotting.

On March 22, 1622, Opechanocough's warriors burst upon the unguarded plantations like a storm from sunrise to sunset, murdered and burned until the straggling little colony was almost erased from the map. It was recovered from the disaster however and then the Virginians loosed their forces of vengeance. They defeated the Indians.

For years the war went on intermittently with treachery and cruelty on both sides. Opechanocough was believed to have been killed but the old fellow was very much alive. Twenty years later he was plotting again. Although he was then one hundred years old he commanded his warriors to carry him into battle.

Once more the savages swept down upon the plantations and again they killed more than 300 whites. Finally they were repulsed by Gov. William Berkeley and their chief taken prisoner and was borne in triumph to Jamestown.

There a white guard deliberately fired upon the old chief, wounding him fatally. Hearing the noise outside the lodges made by the crowd that was trying to get a look at the dying chieftain, Opechanocough ordered his attendant to lift his eyelids. The sight of the crowd filled him for a moment with unnatural strength. Rising to his feet, he demanded that Governor Berkeley be brought to him. Then in one final moment of majesty the old warrior confronted the governor wrathfully.

"Had it been by fortune to take you prisoner, I would not have meant to expose you as a show to my people," he exclaimed. Then he sank back and died.

Conditions are Without Material Change as They Relate to Coal and Coke

Production Shows Continued Gain, Largest at Furnace Plants.

NO WORRY ABOUT STRIKE

Has Lost Interest in Coking Circles, Its Effects Having Been Largely Discounted; Coal Consumers Well Supplied Against Long Shutdown.

From The Weekly Courier
There was a continuation, even accentuation, last week of the contrasting effects of the approaching coal strike on the fuel trade of the Connellsville region, noted a week ago. Coke continued in good demand and its production increased, while the contrary was observable with respect to coal. There was some slackening in coke prices for a small quantity of spot furnace some producers wished to move, but for coke yet to be made there was no recession from the maximum of the preceding week. Coal movement continued to decline and prices to soften.

During last week the furnace ovens contributed much the larger part of the gains in production. In fact, they changed a decrease of 3,020 at their plants in the week of March 18 to an increase of 9,600 tons last week, while the merchant gain averaged only 800 tons each week. The furnace plants had the advantage of a considerable addition to their active oven list and a full six-day running schedule in contrast with an average of five days the week before. Last week they blew in 789 more ovens and are firing up 625 more this week which is very concrete proof that the increased activity at the furnaces of the subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation is continuing to enlarge the pig iron production schedule.

The fact that merchant coke production is gaining at a much less rapid rate, and the new ovens brought into production from week to week are comparatively few in number, shows that the furnace interests generally are being more largely benefitted by the recovery now in progress than the merchants. But the gains are about equally divided between the producing interests. Compared with the corresponding week of March, 1921, the merchant production has increased from 24,440 to 49,030 tons, or a fraction over 100 per cent. Furnace production meantime has grown from 42,780 to 55,400 tons, or almost precisely the same percentage as at merchant plants.

The coal strike has been so long a newspaper topic that it has largely lost interest, even among the producers of both coal and coke. It is a foregone conclusion that the union mines will cease production with tomorrow's run, but nobody seems to be unduly concerned because of that fact. The preparedness measures of coal consumers are apparently so complete that, even if a long tie-up ensues, no inconvenience for want of fuel is anticipated. If it is felt recourse will be had to sources of supply in the non-union districts.

It is not expected that the Connellsville region will be affected by the strike except to the extent that greater demand for fuel may develop as the result of a prolongation of the struggle. The only mines in the Monongahela valley employing union labor are those engaged exclusively in shipping raw coal. The operations which make coke and occasionally or even constantly ship part of their mine output uncooked, are working under the Frick scale, hence are not subject to the union rules. Never in the history of wage controversies involving the unionized districts, have the workers of the Connellsville region taken part in the suspensions. Not being concerned in the present controversy, it is not regarded as probable that there will be any change in the established policy.

The estimated production of coke during the week ending Saturday, March 25, was 134,410 tons, accredited to the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 75,850, an increase of 7,790 tons; Lower Connellsville, 58,560, an increase of 2,600 tons, or a total increase of 10,390 tons, as compared with a net decrease of 1,940 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: Furnace, 55,400, a gain of 9,600 tons; merchant, 40,010, a gain of 790 tons, as compared with a loss of 3,020 and a gain of 1,080 tons respectively during the week ended March 18.

The furnace plants fired up 789 and the merchants 103, or a total of 892 additional ovens. Of this number 790 were at Frick plants as follows: Continental No. 1, Leisenring Nos. 3, 2 and 3, 99 each; Demont No. 2 and Standard, 100 each; Redstone, 30 each; Southwest No. 1, 15; Trotter, 40; Youngstown, 80; Colonial No. 4, 180. The latter has not been in operation for several months. The merchant additions were 86 at American No. 2 and five at Staright.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair in grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage. Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the messy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. —Advertisement

Metropolitan to Put Five Millions in Pittsburg Dist.

PITTSBURG, March 31.—The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, with headquarters in New York, has announced that it has appointed the Real Estate Trust Company of Pittsburgh its agents here for the distribution of $5,000,000 and upwards in mortgages of not less than $2,000 on individual houses, duplex dwellings, apartments and other popular home properties. The money so placed at the disposition of the trust company is a part of the reserve fund of the Metropolitan set aside for mortgages on improved properties in districts where the insurance company has placed its policies.

The Metropolitan has done a large business in insurance in Pittsburg and vicinity, and in conformity with its methods of investing its reserve funds is going to give this section the benefit of securing mortgage money on home improvements to the extent of $5,000,000.

This plan, it is understood, has nothing whatever to do with insurance. It is simply the investment of the company's reserve funds in this locality where the company has extensively operated for a long period.

It is also understood that the loans will not be made on business properties, but will be confined strictly to individual homes and other residential properties.

Wrong Feeding Kills Millions of Chicks What Buttermilk Does to Save Them

In one state alone, 20 million chicks die each year, most of them from some digestive disorder. Feeding tests by experiment stations show that improper feeding and stale, musty or moldy feeds are largely responsible.

Practically every poultry authority makes sour milk or buttermilk one of the principal feeds in a chick ration. Vitality Chick Mash contains a high per cent of buttermilk in dried form, which is cleaner to feed than liquid buttermilk.

The value of buttermilk is twofold. Milk proteins are easiest to digest and assimilate, and the lactic acid destroys harmful bacteria in the digestive tract. Chicks fed Vitality Chick Mash are healthier and grow faster. When fed with the clean, bright grain in Vitality Chick Mash, you have the best ration possible to buy or mix.

STORM CAUSES DAMAGE AT S. CONNELLSVILLE

SOUTH CONNELLSVILLE, March 3.—One half of a 50-foot billboard on the corner of woodland avenue and Main street was blown down yesterday by the high winds. This billboard

Also a number of telephone lines were blown down and in some places trees were uprooted. But he didn't step one side. He asked more questions, one right after another.

"Are you sick, Mary?"
I shook my head.
"Did you hurt yourself?"
I shook my head again.
"It isn't—your mother—she hasn't had bad news from her?"
And then I blurted it out without thinking—without thinking at all what I was saying. "No, no—oh, I wish I had, I wish I had; 'cause then I could go to her, and go away from here!"

The minute I'd said it I knew what I'd said, and how awful it sounded; and I clasped my fingers to my lips. But I was too late. It was always too late, when you've once said it. So I just waited for him to thunder out his anger; for, of course, I thought he would thunder in rage and righteous indignation.

But he didn't. Instead, very quietly and gently he said:

"Are you so unhappy, then, Mary—here?"

And I looked at him, and his eyes and his mouth and his whole face weren't angry at all. They were just sorry, actually sorry. And somehow, before I knew it, I was crying again, and Father, with his arm around me—with his arm around me! I think of that!—was leading me to the sofa.

And I cried and cried there, with my head on the arm of the sofa, till I'd made a big tear spot on the linen cover; and I wondered if it would dry up, before Aunt Jane saw it, or if it would change color or leak through to the red plush underneath, or some other dreadful thing. And then, some way, I found myself telling it all over to Father—about Mary and Marie, I mean, just as if he was Mother, or some one I loved—I mean, some one I loved and wasn't afraid of; for of course I love Father. Of course I do!

Well, I told him everything (when I got started there was no stopping)—all about how hard it was to be Mary, and how today I had tried to be Marie for just a little while, to rest me. He interrupted here, and wanted to know if that was why I looked so different today—more as I had when I first came; and I said yes, that these were Marie's things that Mary couldn't wear. And when he asked, "Why, pray?" in a voice almost cross, I told him, of course, that Aunt Jane wouldn't let me; that Mary had to wear brown serge and calico boots that were durable, and that would wear well.

And when I told him how sorry I was about the music and such a noise as I'd been making, he asked if that was Marie's fault, too; and I said yes, of course—that Aunt Jane didn't like to have Mary play at all, except hymns and funeral marches, and Mary didn't know any. And he grunted a queer little grunt, and said, "Well, well, upon my soul, upon my soul!" Then he said, "Go on." And I did go on.

I told him how I was afraid it was going to be just like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. (I forgot to say I've read it now; I found it in Father's library.) Of course not just like it, only one of me was going to be bad, and one good. I was afraid, if I didn't look out, I told him how Marie always wanted to kick up rugs, and move the chairs out of their sockets in the carpet, and leave books around handy, and such things. And so today it seemed as if I'd just got to have a vacation from Mary's hot gingham dresses and clumsy shoes. And I told him how lonesome I was without anybody, not anybody; and I told about Charlie Smith and Paul Mayhew and Mr. Claude Livingstone, and how Aunt Jane wouldn't let me have those, either, even if I was standing where the brook and river meet.

Father gave another funny little grunt here, and got up suddenly and walked over to the window. I thought at first he was angry; but he wasn't. He was even more gentle when he came back and sat down again, and he seemed interested, very much interested in everything I told him. But I stopped just in time from saying again how I wished I could go back to Boston; but I'm not sure but he knew I was going to say it.

But he was very nice and kind and told me not to worry about the rascals—that he didn't mind it at all. He'd been in several times and heard it. And I thought almost, by the way he spoke, that he'd come in on purpose to hear it; but I guess that was a mistake. He just put it that way so I wouldn't worry over it—about its bothering him, I mean.

He was going to say more, maybe; but I don't know. I had to run. I heard Aunt Jane's voice on the phone.

speak to me and ask me to come to the library. I hoped he would. There were lots more things I'd like to have said to him. But he didn't. He never said a word. He just kept scowling, and got up from the table and went off by himself. But he didn't go out to the observatory, as he most generally does. He went into the library and shut the door.

He was there when the telephone message came at eight o'clock. And what do you think? He'd forgotten he was going to speak before the College Astronomy club that evening! Forgotten his old stars for once. I don't know why. I did think, for a minute, 'twas 'cause of me—when I told him. But I knew, of course, right away that it couldn't be that. He'd never forgot his stars for me! Probably he was just reading up about some other stars, and had forgotten how late it was, or something. (Father's always forgetting things.) But, anyway, when Aunt Jane called him he got his hat and hurried off without so much as one word to me, who was standing near, or to Aunt Jane, who was following him in through the hall, and telling him in her most unamazed-its-you voice how shockingly absent-minded he was getting to be.

ONE WEEK LATER.

Father's been awfully queer this whole week through. I can't make him out at all. Sometimes I think he's just I told him all those things in the parlor that day I dressed up in Marie's things, and sometimes I think he's very angry and whoosh I hadn't.

The very next morning he came down to breakfast with such a funny look on his face. He said good-morning to me three times, and all through breakfast he kept looking over at me with a kind of scowl that was not cross at all—just puzzled.

After breakfast he didn't go out to the observatory, nor even into the library. He'd flitted around the dining room till Aunt Jane went out into the kitchen to give her orders to Susie, then he burst out, all of a sudden:

"Well, Mary, what shall we do this day?" Just like that he said it, as if we'd been doing things together every day of our lives.

"Dad!" I cried, and I knew I showed how surprised I was by the way I stumbled and flushed up.

"Certainly, don't be surprised, I'm sure," I said, "that you certainly can't talk."

"Why, Father, I—I don't know," I stammered again.

"Come, come, of course you know!" he cried. "You know what you want to do, don't you?"

I shook my head. I was so astonished I couldn't even think. And when you can't think you certainly can't talk.

At the Theatres

THE BOISSON

"HER SOCIAL VALUE," with Katharine McDonald in the leading role, is the leading attraction at this theatre today and tomorrow.

Miss McDonald in this picture portrays a type of character which has seldom been seen on the screen—that of a shop girl in a large department store. She presides over the glove counter and in a novel manner makes the acquaintance of a society man.

The salesgirl, Marion Hoyte, has finer instincts than the other members of her family, who are contented with their lowly station in life; so when the society man, James Lodge, proposes marriage, she accepts and they are wed.

But complications ensue and although they love each other, they become divorced. Then one day there is an accident and the girl and her husband find themselves reunited in an extraordinary original manner in a Western mining camp, far from the drawing rooms in which they have moved.

The cast supporting Miss McDonald is an exceptionally capable one, including such well-known players as Roy Stewart, Bertram Grassby, Betty Ross Clarke, Winter Hall.

THE PARAMOUNT

"MEADOW WEST," is the story of a man who came home from the war and found that not all was glory in the returning. Hob Gibson, champion rider and cowpuncher of the world as well as the star of many enjoyable pictures, has the stellar role.

He enters the tale via parachute, dropping off at a familiar spot on the scenery from an airplane in which he has bummied his way across the continent. Going to the foreman of his own ranch, he asks for a job as a cowpuncher. Getting the laugh when he fails to ride a broncho that someone had "fixed" with a thorn under the saddle, he is appointed first assistant to the cook. His chief occupation from then on is peeling potatoes.

The story has its measure of thrills as well as humorous situations. Harvey Gates wrote it and William Craft directed. Supporting the star are such popular players of the screen as Louise Lorraine, Charles Lemoyne, Gordie Short, Jim Coey, Leo White, George A. Williams and Frank Whitson.

The picture will also be shown tomorrow.

THE ORPHEUM

"THE EASY ROAD," the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre, presents Thomas Meighan in the stellar role.

Some of the sweetest romances ever told are those which develop after marriage, when husband and wife estranged or separated perhaps are finally brought together again with that happiness. Such is the romance in "The Easy Road" the new Paramount picture, starring Thomas Meighan which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre.

The husband who in spite of hardships has achieved fame as a novelist settles down on easy street with his rich wife to enjoy life. But with pleasure comes his false idol his life and his character deteriorate. His wife in the hope of renewing his ideals goes abroad. The novelist goes from bad to worse. He is about to commit suicide when something happens that inspires him anew and he again becomes the man of old. The wife returns half-thinking to get a divorce and marry another. The ensuing episodes show how both find happiness.

Gladys George has the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Meighan and Grace Goodall, Arthur Carew, Maxine Elliott Hicks and Lura Anson are in the cast.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping our hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant—Advertisement.

Cured By a Native Herb. On board a vessel bound for India recently a man was bitten by a poisonous reptile; both the ship doctor and a family surgeon failed to control the poison, fast spreading through his system. In a day the vessel reached port. An Indian medicine man was sent for, who produced a native herb which quickly allayed the poison and the man's life was saved.

Roots and herbs are nature's assistants in combating disease. That well-known medicine for ailments peculiar to women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is prepared from roots and herbs possessing medicinal properties of great value in the treatment of such ailments. This is proved by the letters of recommendation we are continually publishing in this paper for it.—Advertisement.

Sports Togs For the New Season

Promise That Easter Will Be Colorful and Gay

HERE'S this about the new vogue for Sports Apparel. Sport Togs, as 1922 fashions them, are so colorful and smart that they become women of every silhouette and type. So comfortable that it's a positive joy to wear them. So inexpensive that they are within reach of every purse. And you don't have to play golf or be a tennis-hound to wear them. 1922 says that Sport Clothes are in good taste no matter where you go. They're even scheduled to supply thrills aplenty in the Easter parade this season.

Scarf and Hat Sets

Every sport costume requires a scarf—but when your hat and scarf are both made of the same ravishing silk, you reach the very height of modishness. Sets come in red, blue, jade and two-toned stripe of figured combinations.

$12.75

Vivid Sweaters

A sweater is at its loveliest in Spring and here is where Spring sweaters are at their best. Stipover and tuxedo styles in wool are $1.05 up. Gay silk sweaters in all high sport shades or two-tone effects—

The Essential Sports Corset

It must be a flexible little thing that confines but does not hamper the body. Gossard Corsets—they lace in front—come in many models ideal for sport. They allow you unlimited freedom above the waist but smooth the curves of your figure. Other makes are Warner and American Lady.

$1.50 to $4.50

Sport Neckwear

Never has Wright-Metzler Store featured such a marvelous array of it! In linen, organdie, pongee, net and raffine—collars, collar and cuff sets and trim vestoses. To add a final bit of verve to one's sweater.

50c to $1.25 to $3.75

Smart Sport Waists

The sports mode revives—but adds to it daring touches of a contrasting trimming. Batiste, dimity, dotted swiss, all are good but not more so than cool pongee which trims itself with small-checked ginghams.

$2.50 to $3.95 to $6.95

Sport Hose

The Wise Sportswoman Accepts the Vogue for Capes $19.75 to $49.75

Capes go to all lengths, this season, for favor. They may be short, three-quarter or long—any type, in fact, that accords with one's figure, one's height and one's general disposition.

Tweed and Polaire are the kindly materials in which they're fashioned—the former in pastel tints and "pepper and salt" colors. The latter in a wide range of soft-toned tans.

No other garments quite achieves their carefree modish, "sport-sy" air.

A Sport Frock Must be Colorful First of All $12.75 to $65

So Sport dresses turn to those materials that can really carry color well—Krepe Knit, Canton Crepe, Eponge (a new one!) and Jersey.

Some favor the three piece costume's grace and carry an independent little jacket. Others content themselves with contrasting trimmings and a peasant blouse. Lady Bird and Mohawk are becoming colors—favored because they provide that all-important thing—a bright spot in one's wardrobe.

Four Beautiful Materials Appear in Sport Suits at $19.75 to $49.75

The first is Tweed—1922's new colorful Tweed—by far and large the suit material most in fashion's favor.

The second is Trelaine—a goodlooking fabric that positively refuses to wrinkle or get easily out of shape.

The next is Spongeen—a sturdy weave which appears in high colors.

Sport Coats Are Swagger Things—Reasonably Priced

$19.75 to $49.75

They are of a type to win the instant admiration and approbation of the woman who is meticulous in the choice of her apparel.

Tweed appears again in them—and Camel's Hair and Chinchilla; the latter in boxy models in such colors as Jockey Red and Kelly Green.

Some are unlined—for comfort. Some have pouch pockets and dapper belts. Each has a distinctive touch to insure that it will ever remain exclusive.

Sport Skirts are Smart Companions for a Sweater

$10.75 to $19.75

They come in Prunella, Homespun, Tweed, Flannel and Satin and are boldly checked or plain so you'll have no trouble finding a matching sweater.

Something new—and easy to get into—are the "Wrap Skirts" that button at the left front!

A particular good-looking model comes in our old friend—plain white flannel.

Van Raalte Veils Win Your Favor at a Glance $1.50 to $5.50

The vogue of draped veils continues—Paris approves them and American women find them vastly becoming.

In an Easter shipment just received from Van Raalte are some of the square veils so popular with small hats, the amply patterned veils that complete the wide-brimmed creation and, of course, a fascinating assortment of veillings in plain, dotted and bordered effects.

"A veil for every hat and no costume complete without one"—is the season's slogan.
